10 TONY ROBERTS,

11 Plaintiff,

12 vs.

13 S. HENSLEY, et al.,

14 Defendants.

CASE NO. 15cv1871-LAB (BLM)

ORDER GRANTING MOTION TO RE-
TAX COSTS [Dkt. 143];

ORDER GRANTING IN PART AND DENYING IN PART MOTION FOR
REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES
[Dkt. 140]

15
17 Presently before the Court are two costs motions related to the March 2019 trial in 18 this case. The first is Plaintiff Tony Roberts' motion to re-tax $2,616.20 in costs the Clerk
19 awarded to Defendant N. Sabati as the prevailing party. The second is a motion by Mr.
20 Roberts' pro bono counsel to recover expenses incurred in trying the case. For the 21 reasons below, Mr. Roberts' Motion to Re-Tax Costs is GRANTED and Mr. Roberts'
22 Motion for Reimbursement of Expenses is GRANTED IN PART and DENIED IN PART.

23 BACKGROUND

24 Mr. Roberts, a state inmate, brought this suit in 2015, alleging that a series of 25 prison dentists were deliberately indifferent to his medical needs. This deliberate
26 indifference, Roberts claimed, led to him developing a series of severe cavities and other
27 dental ailments. By the time of trial, only one defendant remained, Dr. N. Sabati. Mr.
28 Roberts, who had to that point represented himself pro se, petitioned the Court for

1 appointment of counsel. The Court granted that motion and appointed Amber Lee Eck
2 as his trial counsel. Dkts. 86, 87. The case went to trial on March 19, 2019, and the jury
3 returned a unanimous verdict in Dr. Sabati's favor on March 21, 2019. The Court entered 4 judgment that same day.

5 As the prevailing party, Dr. Sabati moved for costs in the amount of $3,086.20.
6 Dkt. 138. The Clerk held a hearing and granted that motion in part, taxing costs against
7 Mr. Roberts in the amount of $2,616.20. Dkt. 142. At the same time, Mr. Roberts' counsel
8 moved to recover expenses incurred in trying the case, which is permitted in some 9 situations under the Court's pro bono rules. Dkt. 140. In all, Mr. Roberts' counsel seeks 10 to recover $22,271.81 in expenses, which includes $2,737.86 for transcripts, $204.95 for 11 demonstrative exhibits, and a total of $19,329 for witness fees paid to Mr. Roberts' dental 12 expert, Dr. Signe Belden.

13 Analysis

14 1. Motion to Re-Tax Costs

15 Mr. Roberts objects to the Clerk's decision to tax costs against him in the amount 16 of $2,616.20. This Court has jurisdiction to review the Clerk's action. Fed. R. Civ. P.
17 54(d); L.R. 54.1(h). While there is a presumption in favor of awarding costs to the 18 prevailing party, courts have discretion to deny costs as long as they specify an 19 appropriate reason. See Champion Produce, Inc. v. Ruby Robinson Co., Inc., 342 F.3d
20 1016, 1022 (9th Cir. 2003). The Ninth Circuit has historically recognized three bases for 21 denying costs to the prevailing party: (1) a losing party's limited financial resources; (2)
22 misconduct by the prevailing party; and (3) "the chilling effect of imposing ... high costs 23 on future civil rights litigants." Id. (quoting Ass'n of Mexican-Am. Educators v. State of 24 California, 231 F.3d 572, 592 (9th Cir. 2000)). While there's no allegation of misconduct
25 by the prevailing party, at least the first and third bases for denying costs are implicated
26 here.

27 First, Mr. Roberts is clearly indigent. He has no funds in any of his accounts and 28 thus would be unable to pay any costs assessed to him. Indeed, a significant part of his

1 argument at trial was that he was unable to afford even basic toiletries like toothpaste and
2 that the prison-provided “tooth powder” proved inadequate in preventing cavities. Dr.
3 Sabati nonetheless argues that because any costs would be incrementally deducted from 4 Mr. Roberts’ prison trust account as a small percentage of the account balance, his ability
5 to obtain basic necessities would not be affected. Since Mr. Roberts does not have any
6 money in his account, however, it’s unlikely that any portion of these costs would be
7 repaid until he leaves prison, at which point the debt would simply serve as a hindrance
8 to him reintegrating into society. His indigency affects him just as it would a plaintiff who 9 is not incarcerated, and such plaintiffs are usually not held responsible for costs. See,
10 e.g., Flores by & through Clark v. United States, 2017 WL 5176884, at *2 (S.D. Cal. 2017)
11 (refusing to award costs because it would be unjust to order indigent plaintiff to pay); see 12 also Lowry v. City of San Diego, 2013 WL 12209819, at *2 (S.D. Cal. 2013) (refusing to 13 award costs because plaintiff, though not completely destitute, would be unable to support 14 herself if ordered to pay).

15 Awarding costs would also have a chilling effect on future civil rights litigants. Dr.
16 Sabati argues that the unique facts here would likely distinguish the present case from 17 future civil rights litigation and therefore have no far-reaching effect on inmate dental care
18 or prison life. But factual distinctions exist in every case, whether civil rights-related or 19 not. Were the Court to find Mr. Roberts liable for costs, it would chill the willingness of 20 other inmates who believe they received inadequate dental care from pursuing those 21 claims. The Court can’t countenance that by taxing Mr. Roberts with costs.

22 The Court finds that Mr. Roberts is indigent and that assessing costs would chill
23 future civil rights litigation. His Motion to Re-Tax Costs is GRANTED.

24 2. Motion for Reimbursement of Expenses

25 Mr. Roberts also moves for the reimbursement of expenses incurred in the 26 prosecution of this action by his pro bono counsel, Haeggquist & Eck, LLP. His counsel
27 requests reimbursement for $22,271.81 of the $29,049.85 in expenses they incurred.

1 This Court may reimburse out-of-pocket expenses necessarily incurred by court-
2 appointed attorneys representing indigents in pro bono cases. L.R. 83.8(2)(a).

3 The Court finds that Mr. Roberts' counsel should be reimbursed $2,737.86 for 4 transcripts and $204.95 for charts and exhibits. These costs were both necessary and 5 reasonable. The requested $19,329 for the services of Mr. Roberts' retained dental
6 expert, however, goes above and beyond what is necessary. In all, Mr. Roberts' counsel
7 seeks reimbursement for 30.4 hours of expert work before trial at an hourly rate of $475
8 and an additional $4,600 for the witness to appear at trial. The Court finds that these 9 figures represent an unreasonably high fee for services. Instead, the Court will apply the 10 lodestar method—similar to the approach used by federal courts in assessing attorney's
11 fees—to determine the reasonable amount of expert fees. See Kelly v. Wengler, 822
12 F.3d 1085, 1099 (9th Cir. 2016) (detailing the use of the lodestar method to calculate 13 attorney's fees). The Court accepts as reasonable the expert's claimed 38.4 hours of 14 work. This includes 30.4 hours before trial and 8 hours for her appearance at trial.¹ The 15 Court finds that an hourly rate of $250 is appropriate. After adding an additional $269 for 16 clerical costs, the appropriate total compensation for the work of Mr. Roberts' expert 17 witness is $9,869.

18 Mr. Roberts' Motion for Reimbursement of Expenses is GRANTED IN PART and 19 DENIED IN PART. Mr. Roberts' counsel is entitled to reimbursement from the Court Pro 20 Bono Fund in the amount of $12,811.21 ($9,869 for witness fees, $2,737.86 for 21 transcripts, and $204.95 for charts and exhibits).

25 ///

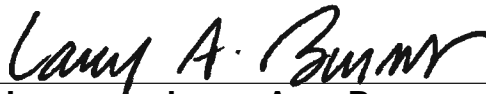

26
27 ¹ Mr. Roberts' expert does not specify the number of hours spent at trial, but instead billed 28 a flat fee of $4,600 for her work. The Court finds that 8 hours is a reasonable estimate of her trial-related hours.

1 CONCLUSION

2 For the reasons above, Mr. Roberts' Motion to Re-Tax Costs is GRANTED, Dkt
3 143, and Mr. Roberts' Motion for Reimbursement of Expenses is GRANTED IN PART
4 and DENIED IN PART. Dkt. 140.
